

Lucas Miller

Letter of Recommendation 2

Dear Admissions Committee,

I am pleased to write this letter of recommendation for Lucas Miller, whom I have had the privilege of teaching in my AP English Literature class. Lucas possesses a curious intellect, always eager to explore new ideas and perspectives.

What sets Lucas apart is his unique ability to meld his analytical skills with an in-depth understanding of human emotion and society. While he excels in logical and analytical pursuits, like being the president of the Chess Club, he also shines in areas that require emotional intelligence and nuanced understanding, such as literature.

In my class, Lucas often submitted essays that were not only well-constructed but also teeming with original insights. He has the rare skill of being able to dissect complex literary works, delve into the psychological depth of characters, and discuss themes in an incredibly mature manner. He's not just concerned with the 'what' but also the 'why' and the 'how,' which is evident in his thought-provoking questions and contributions to class discussions.

Additionally, Lucas demonstrates strong leadership skills. As the president of the Chess Club, he has shown a dedication to not just the game but to the intellectual development of his peers. He has turned the club into a competitive team, emphasizing strategic thinking and intellectual rigor.

Lastly, Lucas has an exceptional attitude towards self-improvement and is not afraid to venture out of his comfort zone. Whether it's riding the waves as a member of the Surf Team or breaking down complex algorithms, he relishes challenges that push him to grow.

For these reasons, I believe Lucas would be an excellent addition to your institution and strongly recommend him for admission.

Best Regards,
Lucas' AP English Literature Teacher
